FROM THE DESK OF THE PRESIDENT -- PROJECT FOR A COLD WINTER DAY

When the SCPGS began we worked on preparing an ancestral chart book. We eventually published two of them in 1976 and 1977. However, since that time our society has grown in membership, and a project of that type is beyond what our board of directors would like to tackle. The board has agreed to encourage this winter project. We are requesting the membership to send in family group sheets (and if possible supporting data). You may send as many as you would like. These will be placed in the family files in the Historical Society Library. These files are used by many researchers and who knows, maybe someone who finds your material will contact you. Even if you do not get a contact, your material will be left as a record of your work to future generations. Family Group Sheets should be for the York County families or families that came from this area. Mark your papers with the family name under which you would like them placed (only one name for one page please). Also, all pages sent should include your name, address, phone number, and the date. Our volunteers will see that they are properly filed. As many of you know, the Historical Society of York County has now moved into its new library, and this project should add to its wonderful collection of genealogical data.

HIVELY'S GENEALOGICAL NOTES

Those interested in reading in detail about the sale of land and the operation of the land office from the earliest history of Pennsylvania through the 1830's may want to search for a copy of an old book, Thomas Sergeant's View of the Land Laws of Pennsylvania, published in 1838. Here are examples of topics covered by Sergeant: Titles Before William Penn's Arrival; Indian Purchases; Titles Under William Penn; From the Death of William Penn in 1718, to the Arrival of Thomas Penn in 1732; Titles under John, Thomas, and Richard Penn, Sons of William Penn; Titles in 1765; Divesting Act of 1779; Titles under the Commonwealth from 1779 to 1784; Fair Play Men; Forms of Warrants; Surveys; Returns of Survey; Title by Improvement and Settlement; What Lands May be Taken up as Vacant; Patents; Prices of Lands; Ten Per Cent and Other Surplus; Six Per Cent Allowance for Roads, etc.; Quit-Rents; Rivers and Islands; Manors; Tenure; General Instructions to Deputy Surveyors, Prepared and Issued from the Land Office in 1765.

Quite likely the above Sergeant book is not found in many genealogical, historical, public, or even law libraries in most areas of the country. If you cannot find a copy of the book but want to learn more at this time about the subject as explained by Sergeant, the SCPGS will provide a photocopy of the complete 300 page volume for a charge of $32. (One page of the photocopy contains two pages of the original volume). Those who are interested in the topic, but who are able to wait for one or two years, may wish to note that a new and extensive book on the subject is in manuscript form. This planned publication is to have information on the history of the land office and detailed information on the records created by that office. It is being written by a staff member of the Pennsylvania State Archives.

The eighteen page article, "The Penn Manorial System and the Manors of Springetsbury and Maske", by William H. Kain, of York, PA, was published in Pennsylvania History, Volume X, No. 4, October 1943. (This is the publication of The Pennsylvania Historical Association.) The first mentioned manor was in York County, PA, and the latter in present Adams County, PA. The following quotes are from the article and explain how manor land in practice differed from other land. "Under his charter Charles II granted to Penn in his private capacity a fee simple absolute in the soil of the province together with control of its government. ...The proprietary was permitted by the charter to dispose of the soil in any way he saw fit, lay off manors, and grant lands to be held under him, his heirs and assigns... In the same year (1681) Penn entered into an agreement with the "adventurers and purchases" who might wish to acquire land. This rendered the proprietary a trustee of the rights of all those buying land in Pennsylvania under the land-office rules for credit purchases. These rules reserved to the proprietary for his own use one-tenth of the land, which could then be purchased only on whatever conditions the prospective purchasers could arrange with the proprietary agents. Such sales were stated to b be made on "special terms". The other nine-tenths of the soil of Pennsylvania was to be sold on "common terms", or at a fixed price per acre. ... The Penn manorial system was in reality merely that branch of the Penn land policy which pertained to the reservation of certain lands for sale on special terms. These reservations, as well as the sale of both reserved and common lands, were entrusted to the administration of the land office."

The last footnote of the above article by William Kain states, "See the author's (Kain's) manuscript paper 'John R. Coates, Landjobber of Springetsbury Manor'". Does any reader of this column know if this paper is available to researchers today in published or manuscript form?
